Here is Terra de Promissio Vineyard Pinot Noir, where the Sonoma Coast AVA and Petaluma Gap AVA overlap.

The southwest sun exposure, hill elevation, wind, and fog of the Petaluma Gap allow slow maturation and optimum ripeness for these grapes, resulting in rich, complex, and age-worthy wines.

- Matt Sands

Very structured and focused, this medium-bodied wine wraps fine-grained tannins around juicy, tangy red fruit like cherries, cranberries and raspberries. It's firm in acidity and braced for continued improvement over a long life. Racy, fresh and linear. Drink or hold.
